Rethink your ideas about flooring

Innovative flooring designers and specifiers must now broaden their vision to consider contemporary issues of lifestyle environment and the importance of function in what they create. New manufacturing processes have created opportunities utilising new materials and recombining existing ones. The results are not only pleasing to the eye and touch, but promote health, comfort and wellbeing. In short, Cushionwood has it all.

What makes Cushionwood unique?

Visually

Accurate replication of a selection of the world's most interesting timbers.

Comfort

3 mm of thick underfoot comfort cushioning separates you from cold, hard floors.

Noise

Much quieter than concrete or floating floors as the extra thickness absorbs more noise.

Low Maintenance

Cushionwood's three ranges all feature TOPSHIELD, making maintenance simple, avoiding most domestic staining and allowing for the easy removal of scuff marks. Initial sealing is unnecessary.

Resilience

The thickness and shock absorption qualities mean less breakages; particularly in cooking and wet areas.

Health

A flooring product which is quieter and softer, with a more neutral temperature creates a greater feeling of well being. Health scientists tell us that smooth flooring is a bonus to those suffering respiratory problems as they leave nowhere for mites and allergens to hide.

Cushionwood, one of the world's most innovative flooring products, is changing perspectives for both commercial and residential use.

Classic

Years of proven performance on Australian commercial floors have established Cushionwood as the standard by which other flooring products are measured. Cushionwood Classic is the original product developed by Kenbrock, introduced into the Australian market over 10 years ago and still setting the flooring standards with its impressive features (page 3). Its slim 100 mm plank delivers that clean, classical and elegant look reminiscent of the finest timber floors. Add to this a level of durability which is still unmatched by most comparable flooring products.

Decoria

This expanded range adds more choice for demanding commercial / retail markets and discerning domestic users.

Decoria incorporates all the original Cushionwood benefits (page 3) plus some exciting new features:

- an extreme, heavy duty .70 mm wear layer on a large 184 x 950 mm plank to meet the pressured demands of high traffic environments
- Nano Silver is an anti bacterial agent, incorporated into Decoria as part of the manufacturing process. Nano Silver is now used extensively in hospitals and children's areas
- a new highly advanced 'synchronised' embossing system which adds a perfectly matched timber texture to the grain pattern. On all DS coded Decoria, you can now enjoy the tactile feel of a real grain texture
- a reassuring 25 year, heavy domestic, warranty which reflects the quality and durability of this range.

Contemporary

This is the second addition to this proven and time tested range of highly durable flooring. Cushionwood Contemporary offers all the benefits of the original Cushionwood range (page 3) with the addition of three important and aesthetic features:

- a wide 180 mm plank - often preferred in commercial environments
- a natural timber finish, in medium/low sheen, that softens reflections from harsh lighting, delivering a relaxed ambience while minimises maintenance and the appearance of foot traffic
- a 'blockwood' option recreating the retro feel of parquetry that once adorned the finest Art Deco buildings.
